Cement Sewer Pipe.

OSHKOSH, Oct. 29 1884.—For the information of those who are misled concerning Cement Sewer-pipe, I wish to state that such sewer pipe is being very extensively manufactured and used in the State of Wisconsin, and is preferred to vitrified. First, for its great strength and durability, it being from one-third to one-half stronger, and less liable to crush in the ditch. Being solidly packed, in making, between iron moulds, it becomes impervious to water or acids, and, if one of these pipes, such as made in Wisconsin, is cemented tight at one end and filled with water, the water will stay there until it evaporates, which shows that it does not filter through. The older this pipe gets, the harder and more rock like it becomes. Second, this pipe is preferred to all others on account of its shape. The larger sizes are egg-shape, contracting the flow in a narrow channel at the bottom, increasing its velocity, keeping it clean and at the same time having a large area above for a larger volume of water when needed. It also has a flat base, which makes it lay firm in the ditch, keeping it in shape, while a round pipe is more liable to roll and get out of shape, either in the filling or settling of the ditch. Cement pipe has been used for sewers in England and various parts of the old world for over one hundred years, and has proved indestructible, either by the action of sewage or time, and is still very extensively used in London and various other European cities. Brooklyn, N. Y., has over fifty miles of cement pipe sewers, laid from twenty to forty years ago, and still giving perfect satisfaction. Query: Why is cement used in brick sewers, and plastered all over the interior surface? Simply because sewage will not go through it to be filtered through the porous brick. Yours respectfully, C. B. HEWITT.

The Use of Cement Pipe for Sewers.

The following veto was filed with City Clerk Geary yesterday afternoon:

To the Honorable the Common Council of the City of Utica:

The following action of your honorable body Friday evening, April 2, 1886, is hereby returned without my approval. (Here is given at length the resolution adopted by the Council providing for a cement sewer in Albany street.)

The sewerage of our city is a very important matter, both from a sanitary and financial standpoint; Our City Surveyor, who is thoroughly competent to judge, has recommended vitrified sewer pipe as the cheapest, safest and best. Since this question was brought before the Council I have received over thirty letters from surveyors and engineers of different cities unanimously testifying to the superiority of this pipe, and stating that it is now universally used throughout the country.

Then why does the Council insist on putting down cement?

Some Aldermen say the people petition for it—there is some force in that I admit—but are they the only parties interested in this matter? When the sewers prove defective (as they are doing continually) the city, and not the people must foot the bills.

And are we to pay any attention to the wail that was dinned into our ears last fall about the sewer gas in the cellars and houses of our citizens? I think we should. If these evils are to be remedied the city should have a voice in the choice of pipe, and I claim should accept the advice of its Surveyor as having had the most experience in such matters.

The only real argument that has been or can be made in favor of the cement pipe we are now using is that it is manufactured here, and a prominent politician is interested in its use.

It seems to me this is not forcible enough to justify jeopardizing the lives of our citizens through defective sewerage, and the depletion of their pockets in trying to maintain a system with inferior pipe.

This is too expensive and dangerous a monopoly for this Council to encourage or maintain.

THOMAS E. KINNEY, Mayor.

A Bride Elect.

THE SPLENDID TROUSSEAU OF THE FUTURE COUNTESS CAIRNS.

[Paris Correspondence of the N. Y. Herald.]

Notwithstanding the London gossip started by the Standard that Earl Cairns is again off with another promise of marriage and that the future Countess Cairns will not be Miss Adele Grant, Galignani furnishes a description of her trousseau, made here, and the wedding gift of her grandmother.

There are tea gowns, in pale blue and pale pink crape and gauze, trimmed with lace, for summer wear. Peignoirs in pale blue and pale pink surah, with all the bands and ruffles of Valenciennes lace.

Those for winter wear are in crushed strawberry plush, lined with fur; in moss green plush, with frontage of pale pink watered silk, veiled in cream lace. There are summer dresses in foulard and surah or fanciful muslin, with bonnets and hats matching every walking dress, and also dainty piles of lingerie in fine batiste trimmed with Valenciennes lace.

Attention was first claimed by a dinner dress in cream watered silk skirt, veiled with overdress in cream lace, figured with roses and leaves painted by hand, the former in natural hues, the latter in delicate shades of wood color. The back of the skirt is adorned with two long, wide bands of mimosa green velvet, lined with pale pink watered silk. The lace overdress was gathered in a flounce just below the waist in front, and upon the gathers is a series of bows in mimosa green velvet, lined with pink watered silk. The corsage, of white watered silk veiled with lace, had a revers of the velvet.

Another dress in cream crepon was remarkable for the graceful cut of the corsage and overskirt, made in one piece, like a sleeveless polonaise, and bordered round the armholes and throat and down the front with fine gold embroidery, the effect being almost that of a Greek peplum. Also a costume in cream white cloth, made with a jacket corsage, covered transversely with a very wide sash laid in flat folds of gold yellow watered silk.

A walking dress was in black tulle dotted with large satin spots, made up over black satin and trimmed with wide black watered ribbons and fine cut massed jet. With this dress came a short wrap in black velvet, black lace and jet, hung with strings of large jet beads.

A dinner dress was in pale yellow faille, covered with white gauze, embroidered in a close pattern of leaves and tendrils in white silk. The panier draperies of plain white gauze met long floating folds of the same materials at the back. The half low corsage was trimmed with a flat ruffle, embroidered gauze, and with rows of wide pale yellow ribbon.

A ball dress in white satin had a short skirt covered with white tulle, dotted with pearls and put plainly on the skirt, meeting a ruche of plain tulle round the hem. A very tasteful demi-toilette was in pale dove-colored faille, striped with minute lines of blue and brown and crimson in set groups. Over this was made the corsage and overskirt in cream embroidered gauze, the latter opening up the front and embroidered with narrow dove-colored watered ribbon.

Also a dinner dress in tea rose faille skirt, cut in three wide bands in front. Underneath these bands set full Frou Frou cream lace, held in place at the top by bows of black ribbon. A polonaise of tea rose satin grounded embossed velvet, the pattern a small, close design of foliage in very pale gray, also trimmed with lace, and bows of black ribbon, formed the over dress.

The wedding dress had a corsage and long train in white embossed velvet, the latter full four yards long, and lined throughout with white satin. The corsage—cut princesse at the back and all in one with the train—has long, square lapels in front, like a Louis XIII, corsage, and is decollete in a point in front and at the back, the opening filled with a guimpe of point lace. The point lace veil is shawl shaped and is to be attached to the coiffure by a set of diamond stars.

The dress for departure is in pale fawn colored faille, embroidered down the front and back of the skirt and around the corsage with dead gold in a fine lace like pattern. The cloak to be worn with this dress is a long redingote in pale fawn colored cloth and pale electric blue satin, brocaded in stripes simulating straw lace. This brocade is laid in flat plaits at the back of the corsage so as to show the lace like stripes, only opening out in full folds in the skirt.

Should the weather prove stormy on the wedding day, this toilet will be replaced by a dress in heliotrope Bengaline, trimmed with a profusion of wide watered ribbons in dark steel gray, and a very full "Mother Hubbard" cloak, made in large flat plaits, and with three short capes, only opening out in full folds in the skirt. There is a ball dress of Ophelia lilac satin and tulle, embroidered in a shaded, delicate, artistic pattern with silver, made with a short, round Empire corsage, and with a long girdle in silver passementerie, each end finished with heavy fringes in silver.

A dinner dress in white satin, with a train of white brocade, wide sash of white satin, terminating in rich pearl fringes. A walking costume in peach kernel colored cloth, piped with pale gray, and having large mother of pearl buttons, with designs in dark brown, the corsage being confined round the waist with a wide scarf cinture in pale blue. Also a sortie de bal, a long paletot in tea rose satin, figured with Easter lilies in their natural hues in velvet, lined with pale blue satin, striped with watered silk bands in the same hue, and having ornaments in gold passementerie at the throat and on the sleeves.

HAY FEVER SUFFERERS.—The number of people annually afflicted with this most annoying malady seems to be greatly on the increase. * * * The editor of this journal is an annual victim, and, with a view to discover a specific cure, has tried numerous remedies. Of these, "Ely's Cream Balm" is by all odds the quickest and most satisfactory, two applications greatly allaying the usual symptoms in the nose and eyes. We would recommend its use by all subject to hay fever, and we gladly bear unsolicited testimony to its efficiency in our own case. * * *—Media, Pa., Record. TTS&w

AS THEY CANNOT POSSIBLY make a porous plaster having anything like the medicinal qualities of Benson's, the camp followers of the pharmaceutical profession produce tons of worthless plasters, and give them names which resemble in print that of the genuine, and, when carelessly spoken, sound like it. For example, Cheap John druggists will offer you trash variously styled "Capsicum," "Capsicin," "Capsicine" or "Capucin" plasters, prefaced sometimes with the name "Benton's" or "Burton's." We earnestly caution the public against the whole tribe of them. They are absolutely useless as remedies for disease. To be sure they are cheap, but plain muslin is cheaper and just as efficacious. Ask for Benson's, watch the spelling, and look for the "Three Seals" trademark, and the word "Capcine," which is cut in the centre of the genuine. SMW

THE BLUFFS.
Mt. Desert Ferry, Maine.
FRED JOHNSON & CO., Proprietors.
This new and commodious hotel, which has gained such popularity by its pleasing location and management, will be open on JUNE 19th, for the accommodation of those who wish to visit this delightful watering place.
There does not exist a more pleasantly located house on the coast of Maine, the scenery from all sides being grand, commanding a view of the entire bay, dotted with islands, while the bold headlands of Mt. Desert Island tower majestically against the sky.
The house is first-class in its appointments, being fitted throughout with all modern conveniences, and is supplied with pure spring water and perfect drainage, ensuring an entire absence of disease. The cuisine will be a special feature of the house and the larder will at all times be supplied with all delicacies of the season.
The surroundings of the hotel are laid out artistically, with winding paths and hedges on either side, with beautiful flowers, while rustic baskets laden with plants and vines, adorn the most conspicuous places. The drives are many and attractive and the facilities for boating unexcelled.
The house is easy of access, being close by the depot and steamer landing. There is post office and telegraph office, also telephone connection.
The proprietors will spare no pains in attending to the wants and comforts of their guests.

All business letters should be addressed to Boutelle & Burr, and communications intended for publication should be addressed: "Editor of Whig and Courier."

SATURDAY, JUNE 26, 1886.

FOR GOVERNOR:

JOSEPH R. BODWELL,

OF HALLOWELL.

FOR REPRESENTATIVES TO CONGRESS

First District—THOMAS B. REED.
Second District—NELSON DINGLEY, JR
Third District—SETH L. MILLIKEN.
Fourth District—CHARLES A. BOUTELLE.

It now looks as though Mr. Morrison's pension rule had joined his tariff bill which was recently kicked out of the House.

The Democrats seem to be getting tired of Mr. Morrison's leadership and warn him that if Congress is to adjourn before fall he will have to abandon his pension rule.

The New York Star reads Mr. Randall and his few followers who are opposed to the free trade policy out of the Democratic party. Harmony is a nice thing to have in the family.

The unsavory Higgins raises a question of veracity with the Boston Herald as regards the interview that recently appeared in that paper relating to the removal of employes and the appointment of a Democrat every time. The honors are about even.

President Cleveland continues to grind out his regular batch of pension vetoes and is so much interested in his work that he even postpones a Cabinet meeting so as to avoid any interruptions. It is unfortunate for the Maine Democracy, which is just now thoroughly in love with the soldier, that the President and Mr. Morrison should engage in a raid upon pension legislation.

The Portland Argus copies from the New York World an editorial stating that the name of Mr. Bodwell was presented to the Republican State Convention by a partisan editor. The editor of the Argus who was in that convention is aware that the name of Mr. Bodwell was presented by Gen. Sheppard, a gallant soldier, and yet he admits to his columns the World's statement knowing it to be false. The Argus is resorting to very contemptible tactics.

The Kennebec Journal says: The letter of Congressman Boutelle to the convention at Bangor which recently nominated him for a third time appears in our columns this morning. It presents in a striking manner the deficiencies and blunders of President Cleveland's administration and shows the necessity of again placing the Republican party in power as the custodian of the interests of the Nation. It is a strong letter, containing vital truths forcibly expressed.

Sombody has interviewed that remarkable humbug Solon Chase and found that he is for Blaine for President. The WHIG should hasten to convey to its readers this important information.—Commercial.

If Uncle Solon had sworn allegiance to the representative of sham reform now in the White House he would have been characterized by the Democratic press as a sterling citizen rather than a "remarkable humbug;" but instead of troubling itself about informing the WHIG what it should do, we would suggest that our evening contemporary inform its own readers whether or not it is in favor of free fish. Speak right up neighbor.

In his annual address the Department Commander of the Grand Army of the Republic in Virginia, stated that there were only seven Grand Army men at that time in the employ of the Government in the Department of Virginia, North and South Carolina. Of thirty-nine comrades at work in the Norfolk Navy Yard, thirty-four were removed and their places filled principally by ex-Confederate soldiers. A one-armed Union soldier was removed without cause and an ex-Confederate soldier given the place. An engine tender of sixteen years' experience, who was a Union soldier long confined in Libby Prison, was removed and his place given to a man who deserted the Union Navy to join the Confederate cause. What do the Maine veterans think of this record of the party which now professes to be the soldiers' friend?

The Senate Committee has practically concluded its consideration of the River and Harbor bill. The following are the Maine items: Rockland, $30,000; breakwater at the mouth of Saco river, $12,500; Portland, $40,000; York, $15,000; Moosebec Bar, $10,000; Lubec Channel, $10,000; Penobscot river, continuing the improvement by widening the channel opposite Bangor and removing obstructions near Crosby's Narrows, $15,000; Narragaugus river, $[illegible],000. The following surveys have been ordered in Maine: Bagaduce river, between the towns of Penobscot and Brooksville; Big Rapids of St. Johns river; Camden Harbor; Kennebec river at Bath, and from Augusta to lower end of Perkins' Island; St. George's river, from Warren to Thomaston; Matinicus Isle, with a view to a harbor of refuge; Penobscot river, from Bangor to Bucksport Narrows; St. Croix river, from Ferry Point Bridge, at Calais, to Breakwater Ledge; Bar Harbor, Maine, with the view of establishing a breakwater for the protection of commerce.

Our evening contemporary, which lays aside its deep love for the soldiers long enough to sneer at the National Veterans' Rights Association and to endorse Mr. Morrison's invidious attack upon pension legislation, remarks that the Republican Congressmen now realize that they have made a mistake in presenting a solid opposition to this unjust proposition. The Republicans realize nothing of the kind and if they are as successful in their opposition to this scheme as they were in opposing the free trade bill, Mr. Morrison will have an opportunity to write a supplement to that much talked about appeal to the people. On one side he can arraign the wicked Republicans for voting against a bill to reduce that enormous "surplus" in the treasury and relieve the people of a portion of the "burden of taxation;" and on the other side of his appeal he can denounce the same party for defeating his scheme to increase the burden of taxation and still further swell the highly objectionable "surplus" from fifty to one hundred million dollars annually. Such an appeal would compare favorably with the Democratic National platform which is interpreted by Mr. Morrison on the one hand to mean free trade and by Mr. Randall on the other to mean just the reverse. Both are excellent illustrations of Democratic consistency.

There will be a majority and minority report on the case of Senator Payne of Ohio, the former being adverse to any investigation of the charges of bribery. Unless the very damaging evidence that has been made public is entirely untrustworthy the report of the majority will cause no little surprise.

The Maine workingmen will be interested to note that the representative organ of the Democratic party in this State, the Argus, gives its hearty approval to an editorial from the New York Star denouncing the defeat of the Morrison bill and declaring that it was a "moderate measure" when as a matter of fact that bill aimed a deadly blow at nearly all of Maine's important industries and has been vigorously opposed by the wage earners all over the country. This is Democratic regard for the workingmen as indicated by a party organ.

The Commercial is very indignant because the National Veterans' Rights Association prefers charges against Commissioner Black, a man "who was nearly shot to death," but utters no word of condemnation against Commissioner Black's unjust treatment of soldiers fully as deserving of Government aid as himself and in much more distressing circumstances. General Black is to-day drawing the largest pension paid veterans of the late war on the ground that he is a "physical wreck," but at the same time he is drawing a salary of $5,000 a year as the head of the Pension Department. It is therefore evident that the disability has ceased to exist, or that Gen Black is drawing a salary that he is unable to earn. Under these circumstances one would naturally suppose that Gen. Black would be a little careful in his consideration of the cases of less fortunate veterans than himself, but he has carried his warfare against the just claims of poor soldiers to that extreme that the Secretary of the Interior felt obliged to overrule one of his decisions, and a prominent Democrat in Illinois voluntarily wrote to Washington protesting against his unjust discrimination against the claim of Hon. Joseph W. Fifer, who was taken from the field for dead and who is to-day much nearer a "physical wreck" than Gen. Black.

The Ohio Conspiracy.

[Chicago Inter Ocean.]

If general intelligence from the outside world penetrates the thick walls of Mr. Joseph C. Mackin's cell, he must be green with envy. His fine work in Chicago, for which he was awarded free transportation to Joliet, was the coarsest bungle, the simplest crudity, as compared with the forgery just reported from Ohio's capital. The general fact in the case was very well known before, namely, that the Columbus tally-sheets, after last fall's election, and pending the count, were so altered as to change 208 to 508. Of course, to change the footing involved only the alteration of one figure, but to make the details of the tallies justify the footing was the rub. That this task was actually accomplished was long ago established. But now the hero of it all is coming to light.

It seems that the papers were taken Saturday night to the penitentiary, which is located at the capital, and an expert forger set to work at the alternations necessary. To guard against interruptions, the work was done in the insane ward of the hospital. He had that night and Sunday to work in. The fellow was promised a pardon as his reward. It is almost superfluous to add that he was cheated out of his pay. Governor Hoadly is a very bitter Democrat but an honest man. The report says that the Warden of the penitentiary was not in the secret. If that be so than the management must have been very loose. But, however that may have been, the evidence is said to be ample that the forgery was done within those walls, and was an important part of the general conspiracy to steal the Legislature, and with it the seat in the United States Senate occupied by John Sherman. It may be set down as a fixed fact that whoever the tools may have been the coal-oil gang furnished the boodle.

There should be no trifling with a matter so serious as this. Sir Henry Maine contends that if this Republic survives and prospers it will be the first really successful experiment at self government, and he might have added that its chief peril in these days is from practical denial of the right of suffrage. The Southern bulldozer and ballot-box stuffer pleads the clannishness and ignorance of the negro as his excuse, but such frauds as were perpetrated in Cincinnati and Columbus last fall are without the least shadow of an excuse. To allow that sort of crime to go unpunished would be to invite the overthrow of the government by undermining its foundation.

The Southern rebellion was, indeed, as General Logan brings out so conspicuously in his book, "The Great Conspiracy," but it was also the inevitable outgrowth of a system of abor a class of property which the conspirators had inherited. The Ohio conspiracy, however, can not be said to have roots of growth in the common soil. It was a plot having its origin solely in the unscrupulous determination of a clique to control the politics of Ohio, by foul means, if not by fair, by bribery and forgery if necessary. In pursuance of that policy George H. Pendleton was driven from the Senate and into virtual exile, and Judge Thurman cast into outer darkness, deprived of participation in the long delayed triumph of his party.

Not content with seizing the Democracy with all its belongings, the conspirators resolved to capture the State, and defraud the majority out of their fairly-earned victory at the polls. Herein they overreached. So long as the operations were confined within party limits, the general public looked on without taking a hand in the contest. But when it comes to tampering with returns and practicing crime against the State, it is high time to test the virtues of that whip of scorpions which justice is supposed to carry for use in extreme cases.

BREWER, June 1st, 1886.

A. M. ROBINSON, JR.:—I feel so thankful for what your Sarsaparilla has done for me, that I give you this testimonial. I have suffered more than five years with humor in my stomach. My food hurt me so much that it brought on other troubles. I have had weakness of the Kidneys, Backache, Headache and Heart Trouble, more or less all that time. I have taken Bell's Sarsaparilla but a few weeks, and yet it has made a new man of me. My pain is gone. I can eat and feel like myself again. Yes, what you say is true, Bell's Sarsaparilla is a Wonderful Medicine.

THE SAFEST FOOD

IN SUMMER

FOR YOUNG OR DELICATE CHILDREN.

A Sure Preventive of Cholera Infantum.

It has been the positive means of saving many lives, having been successful in hundreds of cases where other prepared foods failed.

Its basis is SUGAR OF MILK, the most important element of mother's milk. It contains no unchanged starch and no Cane Sugar, and therefore does not cause sour stomach, irritation, or irregular bowels.

For Infants deprived of mother's milk, or when weaning, it is unequalled.

For Invalids, either in chronic or acute diseases, it restores digestion, and builds up the strength. It is

The Most Nourishing,
The Most Palatable,
The Most Economical,
Of All Prepared Foods.

Sold by Druggists—25c., 50c., $1.00.

☞ An interesting pamphlet entitled "Medical Opinions on the Nutrition of Infants and Invalids," free on application. Wells, Richardson & Co., Burlington, Vt.

MAINE NEWS.

FROM FARMINGTON.

New Lodge of Masons in Strong.

FARMINGTON, June 25. Davis Lodge, No. 191, F. & A. M., was duly constituted in Strong yesterday afternoon and the new hall was dedicated with fitting ceremonies by Most Worthy Grand Master Fessenden I. Day, of Lewiston, assisted by other grand officers. After the election of officers followed a banquet in the hall, after which the lodge assembled, and headed by the band, marched to the Methodist church in which the officers were publicly installed by the officers of the Grand Lodge, after which an able address on Masonry was delivered by Wm. H. Smith, Esq., of Portland. George E. Davis, of Portland, for whom the lodge was named, was present and assisted in the exercises. Music was furnished by a quartette choir. The lodge starts out under the most favorable auspices.

FROM BRUNSWICK.

Maine Historical Society.

BRUNSWICK, June 25. At a meeting of the Maine Historical Society at Adams' Hall this morning the following officers were elected: President, James W. Bradbury, Augusta; Vice President, Rev. Samuel F. Dike, Bath; Corresponding Secretary, William Goold, Windham; Treasurer, Lewis Pierce; Biographer, Joseph D. Williamson; Recording Secretary, Librarian and Cabinet Keeper, H. W. Bryant; Standing Committee, Rufus K. Sewall, Wm. B. Lapham, Wm. Goold, Edward H. Elwell, Joseph D. Williamson, James P. Baxter, Prof. Henry B. Chapman, resident member. One vacancy was filled by the election of Rev. William DeWitt Hyde, Brunswick. Corresponding members, Rev. John B. L. Soule, H. Kensington, London; Edward Russell, Horatio King, Washington; Charles Gayarri, New Orleans. Field Day Committee, A. G. Tenney, R. C. Sewall, E. I. Elwell. The different reports were accepted. The next annual meeting is to be held on Wednesday of the next commencement week.

DROWNED AT SEA.

The Fate of a Pembroke Sailor.

NEW YORK, June 25. Bark Gleneida, of Pembroke, Me., just arrived from Talcahuano reports that Frank Trigarden, a seaman, 27 years old, fell overboard June 20, and was lost.

FROM WINTHROP.

Funeral of One of the Huntington Avenue Fire Victims.

WINTHROP, June 25. The obsequies of Oliver Frost, one of the victims of the recent Huntington avenue conflagration, occurred at his late residence, in Monmouth, to-day. His death was a severe shock to the community where he was best known.

FROM CALAIS.

Boy Drowned while Bathing.

CALAIS, June 25. Arthur Hill, eleven years old, was drowned in the St. Croix river, near the lower bridge, while bathing last night. His body was recovered immediately, but it was unable to resuscitate him.

COLLEGE RACES.

The Bowdoin Crew at Lake George.

LAKE GEORGE, N. Y., June 25. The Bowdoin crew arrived this morning and are quartered at the Lake House. They are coached by Fred Plaisted and their boat is of cedar. They rowed over the course this afternoon. All are in fine condition. Other crews are expected Monday.

FROM WASHINGTON.

News About the Capital.

The River and Harbor Bill.

The Senate Committee on Commerce moved this morning to report the river and harbor bill next Monday.

The Agricultural Appropriation Bill.

The agricultural appropriation bill, as it passed the Senate, was considered by the House Committee on agriculture to-day. The Senate amendments, relating to the bureau of animal industry, statistics and sugar, were non-curred in. There are no other points of difference between the two houses over which any controversey is expected.

The Case of Senator Payne.

The Senate Committee on Privileges and Elections held a short meeting this morning and reported adversely to any investigation of the charge of bribery in connection with the election of Senator Payne. It is concluded that the evidence is not sufficient to show that money was used in the election and very confident that the result was not in any way affected by improper means. There will be a minority report in favor of the investigation.

It is said that only Senators Hoar and Frye will sign the minority report and that Senators Teller, Evarts, Logan, Saulsbury, Vance, Pugh and Eustis will sign the majority report.

A Treasury Appointment.

The Acting Secretary of the Treasury to-day appointed A. E. Dougherty of Pennsylvania, to be Chief of Division of the Sixth Auditor's office, vice B. F. Abbott resigned.

COMMENCEMENT AT HARVARD.

Class Day Exercises.

BOSTON, June 25. Class day dawned with dark skies and the yard and college buildings wore a rather dismal look. Notwithstanding the inclemency of the weather, however, the usual high spirits prevailed and the groups of guests which began early to arrive were scarcely less in numbers than on more favored previous similar occasions. At 9.30 the senior class assembled in front of Holworthy and marched to Appleton chapel where Rev. A. P. Peabody, D.D., offered prayer. Following the devotional duties came exercises in Sanders' Theatre which had been prettily decorated for the occasion. The theatre was filled to its utmost capacity with friends of the seniors and their guests. At 11.15 the seniors again assembled before Holworthy Hall and marched to the theatre.

Exercises in Sanders' Theatre.

The exercises opened with prayer by Dr. Peabody. Then came an oration by John McKinsley Merriam, of South Framingham, Mass., the subject being "Education and its Influences upon Individuals and Society." The speaker's delivery was excellent and his effort considered masterly. A poem by Alanson Bigelow Houghton, of Corning, N. Y., and founded on the following extract from the Book of Wisdom "Let no flower of spring pass by us. Let us crown ourselves with rosebuds before they be withered." The Ivy oration was by Hammond Lamonte, of Goshen, N. Y. The class ode by Thomas Parker Sanborn of Concord, followed, being succeeded in turn by the class song, the words of which were written by H. E. Fraser. At the conclusion of the exercises in the theatre the usual number of spreads were thrown open.

Forty-Ninth Congress—First Session.

Senate.

WASHINGTON, June 25. The Senate took up the Fitz-John Porter bill and Senator Logan addressed the Senate on the bill.

Mr. Logan opened with objection to the bill on a constitutional point. Mr. Logan had no prejudice against the man but the friends of Porter had placed the case before the country in a one sided way and on that letters had been got from distinguished men expressing views of the case favorably to Gen. Porter.

Mr. Manderson interposed to suggest a case of the President increasing the number of Judges, say in New Jersey, in order to reappoint a Judge who had been impeached and dismissed for cause.

Mr. Logan said that that would be a case precisely on "all fours" with this. Mr. Logan did not expect his words to have any weight in the Senate, for he always noticed that when the Senate was determined to do a thing it turned a deaf ear to everything else whether law or fact. This case was not a trial of Gen. Porter. Gen. Porter had been tried and condemned. This was the trial of Abraham Lincoln, of James A. Garfield and of many brave and distinguished officers of the army.

It had been said that Gen Porter had been a good soldier before the war. That was no argument. Jefferson Davis and Robert E. Lee had been good soldiers and loyal men before the war. The fact was Fitz-John Porter and others, whose names it was not now necessary to mention, conspired to make it impossible for a western officer to command the armies of the east. The eastern army was never a success until General Grant took hold of it and at that time Gen. Porter and some of his kind were not then in it. It was part of the programme of Porter and his friends that no western man should command that army.

Mr. Logan asserted that Porter was the cause of the first Bull Run defeat, by persuading Patterson to retreat from Winchester with 30,000 men. In support of this he had the clerk read some extracts from his published work. "The Great Conspiracy." He denied that he was endeavoring to persecute Porter, when he was only defending Lincoln. Said he: "I will stand over the dust of Lincoln and swear by all the gods to his act as being a honest and just act. You gentlemen that were down in the Confederacy," continued Mr. Logan, "don't know anything about this case, except what you have read, and you come up here and vote without reference to the facts, out of sympathy for this man."

Every man restored to the army by Congress after dismissal because of sympathy with the rebellion had found Republicans in Congress to aid them. The prophecies of a few years ago were coming true; the legislation of the war was being reversed every day and by Republican votes.

Mr. Logan entered into an elaborate analysis of the military situation in August, 1862, to show that Fitz-John Porter had not done his duty and had been treacherous to his commanding officer and to his country and would have been condemned to death and would have been shot had not kindly Lincoln said: "For God's sake don't require me to shoot a Democrat at this time." Although Lincoln had said that the evidence warranted the death of Porter as to the alleged force of 25,000 in front, Mr. Logan denied that there was, or could have been, such a large force.

Mr. Sewell asked him whether he could deny that in order to carry out Gen. Pope's order to attack Jackson's right, General Porter would have to beat 25,000 men.

Mr. Logan did deny, asserting that all of Longstreet's command except a division were engaged in fighting Pope's men. He would have had to whip only 6,000 men.

Mr. Sewell asked Mr. Logan whether he wished to go to the country with the remark that the statement of a board composed of Generals Schofield, Terry and Getty was a deliberate falsehood.

Mr. Logan wished to go to the country with the remark that the statement made by that board was not true. He did not mean that the gentlemen named would intentionally falsify, but he meant to say the record did not sustain them. Mr. Logan asserted that it was Porter's duty to attack the enemy when a battle was going on and he found the enemy in his front, whether he had orders to attack or not. He asked Mr. Sewall what he thought of that.

Mr. Sewell replied, "Not necessarily."

Mr. Logan ridiculed the idea of Porter's "martyrdom." Mr. Lincoln had ceased to be a martyr in these days and men who lost their lives for the Union cause had come to be martyrs no longer. The "martyrs" now were the men who were treacherous to the Union.

Mr. Teller moved an amendment to appoint Gen. Alfred Pleasanton on the army retired list.

Mr. Plumb would venture to say that not a man in the Senate who served the Confederacy in arms would hesitate to say that such a soldier in the Confederate army would have been dismissed in disgrace, if not shot for failing to perform the obvious duty which Porter failed to perform on the 29th and 30th of August, 1863.

Mr. Plumb understood that the court marshal that had tried Porter came within one vote of decreeing his death.

Mr. Sewell denied the statement. Mr. Plumb said there was no positive proof of his statement as the court was sworn to secrecy, but it had gone into the common knowledge of men. His so called vindication was a stab at Lincoln.

Mr. Voorhees asked whether General Grant had also stabbed Abraham Lincoln. No man had said so much as Gen. Grant had said in vindication of Gen Porter.

Mr. Plumb thought this new reverence of Voorhees for Gen. Grant was as marvellous as the conversion of Paul.

Mr. Voorhees said he was professing no new reverence for Gen. Grant and inquired whether Mr. Plumb had lost his.

Mr. Plumb did not think it would do for friends of Porter to use Grant's name, they had long held him up as everything that was base.

Mr. Voorhees asked what was to be done with Gen. Grant's testimony. Mr. Plumb conceded that there was a division among northern people about the matter. Would the South divide on the question? was there nothing significant in the fact that every man who served the Confederacy would vote to put Fitz John Porter on the roll of Union heroes?

Mr. Butler interposed to say that he had sat during this discussion without opening his mouth, either for or against the bill, but he submitted that there was a point beyond which forbearance ceased to be a virtue.

Quite a lively colloquy then ensued between Messrs. Butler and Plumb, after which Mr. Plumb said he had just been informed that the President had vetoed the bill giving a pension of $50 a month to the widow of Major General Hunter, who had been the presiding officer of the Court Martial that had tried Fitz-John Porter. That was a fitting accompaniment for the passage of the Fitz-John Porter bill, but the loyal people of the country would see to it that Mrs. Hunter did not suffer.

Mr. Blair said there were circumstances in Mrs. Hunter's case that made the veto of her pension almost like the stab of death.

Mr. Voorhees said he was informed that the reason for vetoing the bill was because the case was still pending in the pension office.

Mr. Blair said the reason did not apply, as this $50 case was entirely out of the jurisdiction of the pension officers. If, however, the President had the excuse of ignorance he (Mr. Blair) thanked God that he had so good an excuse and that his excuse was no worse.

Mr. Teller's amendment was voted down yeas 19, nays 29. Various other amendments were offered and voted down.

The bill was then passed, yeas 30, nays 17, as follows:

Yeas—Beck, Berry, Blackburn, Brown, Butler, Call, Cameron, Cockrell, Coke, Colquitt, George, Gibson, Gorman, Gray, Hoar, Jones of Ark., Jones of Nev., McPherson, Maxey, Mitchell of Oregon, Pugh, Ransom, Riddleberger, Sewell, Vance, Vest, Voorhees, Walthall, Whittethorne and Wilson of Maryland—30.

Nays—Aldrich, Allison, Conger, Cullom, Evarts, Frye, Hale, Harrison, Hawley, Ingalls, Logan, Manderson, Palmer, Sawyer, Spooner, Teller and Wilson of Iowa—17.

Amoung the pairs announced were the following: Dolph with Hearst, Blair with Pike, Chace with Kenna, Edmunds with Harris, McMillan with Sabin, Miller with Hampton, Dawes with Payne, Platt with Camden, Plumb with Morgan, Morrill with Saulsbury, Van Wyck with Fair, and Mitchell of Pennsylvania with Jones.

The Senator first named in each pair would, it is believed, have voted against the bill and the Senator last named in its favor.

The bill having already passed the the House and not having been amended by the Senate now goes to the President for his signature.

Mr. Plumb called up the House bill to provide for the adjustment of land grants made by Congress to aid in the construction of railroads within the State of Kansas and the forfeiture of unearned lands.

Adjournment followed at 6.15 P. M. till Monday next

House.

Immediately after the reading of the journal the Speaker laid before the House various veto messages yesterday transmitted by the President. They were read by the clerk and severally referred to the Committee on Pensions or on Invalid Pensions, until that vetoing the bill granting a pension to the widow of Major General Hunter was reached when Mr. Hepburn of Iowa, moved that its consideration be postponed until Tuesday next. The motion was lost, 95 against 141, and the message took the usual course.

The House shortly went into Committee of the Whole on the sundry civil bill.

Mr. Bland offered an amendment to the silver certificate amendment, adopted yesterday, so as to place small certificates on the same footing as to redemption and reissue as the larger certificates already issued.

Mr. Bayne, of Pennsylvania, opposed the amendment and regretted that he had not been here yesterday to make a point of order against the original amendment.

These shin plasters would be put in circulation in lieu of silver dollars and the friends of silver coinage who had repeatedly said the people wanted silver dollars were forced to stultify themselves.

Mr. McMillan, of Tennessee objected to silver certificates being characterized as shin plasters. They had silver dollars back of them which might be exchanged for them at the pleasure of the holders. He was getting sick and tired of hearing gentlemen berate the silver dollar. It was currency good enough for Abraham and Christ and for the Fathers of the Republic.

Mr. Reed. I did not know Abraham had a dollar of 412½ grains.

Mr. Weaver, of Iowa. The gentleman is a descendant of Ishmael. He does not come from Abraham at all. [Laughter.]

Mr. Bland's amendment was finally adopted.

A short debate ensued upon the coast survey clauses of the bill and this was followed by a discussion of the pending paragraph.

Pending action the committee rose and the House at 5 o'clock took a recess until evening, the session to be for the consideration of Pension bills.

NEW YORK, June 25. The Kings county Grand Jury to-day returned indictments against the Coney Island Jockey club and the Brighton Beach Racing association for taking and recording bets.

A Priest Sentenced to Eleven Years in Prison.

SYRACUSE, June 25. Rev. John E. O'Sullivan was last night found guilty by the jury of criminal assault on Abbie O'Connor, at the Catholic parsonage, in Camillus, in May, 1884. The trial has been in progress for three days and has excited great interest. The evidence was of a sensational character. This morning Judge Kennedy sentenced him to eleven years in Auburn Prison. A stay of proceedings for a week was granted, during which time he will be confined in Onondaga penitentiary in this city.

INDIANA.

Fatal Opposition to a Sheriff.

RUSHVILLE, Ind., June 25. Sheriff Tompkins, with a posse of four men, yesterday undertook to put the purchaser at a Sheriff's sale in possession of the farm of David Loughlin now an inmate of the Insane Asylum. Resistance was made by Mrs. Loughlin and her sons and one of the sons opened fire on the Sheriff. The fire was returned and Loughlin was killed. Mrs. Loughlin and the other son were then arrested and brought to jail.

FOREIGN NEWS.

Parliament Prorogued—The Queen's Speech.

LONDON, June 25. Parliament was prorogued to-day. The following is the Queen's speech:

MY LORDS AND GENTLEMEN:

I have determined to release you from your high duties before the full accomplishment of the regular work of the session, in order to ascertain the sense of my people on the important proposal to establish a legislative body in Ireland for the management of Irish, as distinguished from Imperial affairs. With this object it is my intention to immediately dissolve Parliament.

I continue to happily maintain the most friendly relations with foreign powers. I have the satisfaction to acquaint you with the fact that the war like operations of Servia against Bulgaria have been brought to a close through the wise counsels of the powers and the forbearance of the Sultan; and that also after a period of anxiety the adoption of pacific counsels by Greece, the disarming of the Greek forces now in progress, has removed serious danger to the peace of the east of Europe. The state of affairs in Egypt has improved.

I have been enabled to materially reduce my force in that country and bring it within the southern limits of Egypt proper. I have concluded an arrangement with Spain which, if adopted by Cortes, will, I trust, increase our commercial intercourse with Spain and also encourage the importation of colonial wines. I have felt a lively interest in promoting the exhibition of the products of manufactures and arts of my colonial and Indian domains, which is now being held in the metropolis.

The Overture to Parnell.

William O'Brien telegraphs to the London agent of the Associated Press respecting Col. Howard Vincent's denial that he made official overtures to the Parnellites on behalf of the conservatives as follows: "After Vincent's interview with me we walked to the office of the National League where he had an interview with Harrington and Hooper nationalist members of Parliament. At the meeting with these gentlemen Vincent intimated that he would communicate what had occurred to Lord Carnarvon, Lord Lieutenant. He also informed them that he had been in communication with the highest officials of Dublin Castle concerning matters discussed at the League office and that Lord Carnarvon had suggested holding a conference with Parnell at Vincent's house. I cannot in view of all these facts regard Vincent's visit as unofficial.

LOCAL MATTERS.

The Municipal Officers destroyed $300 worth of seized liquors at the police station yesterday.

Mr. J. P. Moore was thrown from his wagon on Second street early yesterday morning and had three ribs broken.

Mr. J. B. Stetson, late clerk of the Quincy House, Boston, and now proprietor of the Lake Auburn Hotel, is in the city.

Mr. L. H. Murch, of this city, has sold a very handsome yearling Judge Advocate colt to Mr. A. W. Brackett, of Pittsfield.

The tents for two of the Second Regiment companies were put up at Maplewood yesterday. The large target is all ready for use.

Salmon are not selling as cheap as they were last year at this time. They are now being cut up for from sixteen to twenty cents per pound.

The Bangor people who attended the Universalist State Convention at Gardiner this week report a most interesting occasion and a pleasant social time.

Owing to some misunderstanding our report of the graduating exercises of the Orono High School failed to reach us yesterday, but will appear Monday morning.

The drive of the late E. W. Loveland, now on Passadumkeag rips, will be brought into the boom by Mr. Michael Burke, who went up there yesterday morning.

Very few mackerel are seen in the market and those are poor in quality and high in price. Fishermen say that these fish are not on the Maine coast this year and are at a loss to account for it.

The Alumni base ball game which occurred Wednesday afternoon at Brunswick, resulted in a victory for the college nine by a score of nine to seven. Only three innings were played.

The fence which has been around the Old Ladies' Home on State street for so long a time has been removed and a handsome hedge now supplies its place. The change is a decided improvement.

Mr. James A. Greenacre who owns the block on Mercantile Square in which his store is situated will make extensive improvements there this season. He will fit up several new offices in the second story and enlarge Acadian Hall.

We return thanks to Rev. W. H. Williams, Secretary of the late East Maine Methodist Conference at Winterport, for a printed copy of the minutes of the session. It is a volume of about seventy pages and contains a large amount of valuable information.

The Apollo quartette are thinking some of giving concerts in the vicinity of Bangor in response to many urgent requests. Such a fine musical organization would no doubt draw large audiences and that they would give a highly interesting entertainment is an assured fact.

The annual Commencement exercises at the Maine State College commence at Orono to-night when the Sophomores will compete for the Prentiss prize for the best declamation. To-morrow evening President Fernald delivers the Baccalaureate address before the Senior class.

The Bangor & Piscataquis Railroad will sell tickets at half rates throughout muster week and the arrangement of the trains will be such that it is thought a large number from up-river will visit the city during the encampment. The new train will go on the route Monday and ought to prove successful.

In the annual readjustment of the salaries of "presidential" (namely first-class, second-class and third-class) post-offices, upon the basis of the business transacted during the last year, the compensation of the postmaster here has been raised from $2,700 to $2,800 and that of the Houlton postmaster from $1,500 to $1,600.

Our Winterport correspondent writes: Mr. Volney B. Cushing delivered his very popular lecture, "The Lost Atlantis," Thursday evening at the Congregational church, to an appreciative audience.——The boot and shoe store of W. B. Snow was entered some time Thursday night and goods taken to the amount of fifty dollars or more.

The Penobscot was late into Bangor yesterday, not arriving until past three o'clock. The cause was the very heavy freight which she brought. The Forest City leaves Boston to-night on her first trip. The line is enjoying an immense patronage at present and if accommodating officials is any requirement it is certainly merited.

At the market of Brown & Page yesterday there were on exhibition some thirty boxes of very handsome cultivated strawberries. They were raised by Mr. C. H. Smith of Hermon and were a good example of what strict attention to the cultivation of small fruit will do. These berries were only two weeks later than Massachusetts natives of a much poorer quality.

The large lumber raft being built near Joggin Mine, N. S., will be 410 feet long, 50 feet wide, 3f feet deep, to contain 2,250,000 superficial feet of timber, weigh 6,000 tons and will draw 23 feet of water. It will be completed some time in July and will be towed to New York. Many of our Bangor lumbermen are awaiting with much interest the result of this enterprise.

Capt. John F. Ford of the Jameson Guards of this city was united in marriage Tuesday afternoon to Miss Katie McGrath of Aldrich, England. The ceremony was performed at St. John's Catholic Church, by Rev. Edward McSweeney. Afterwards a reception was held at their new home where their numerous friends and relatives presented them with many useful and ornamental presents.

FIRE ALARMS. At present when a fire alarm is rung in the firemen hardly wait to count the strokes of the bells, but start at once for box 28. An alarm was sounded from that box at five o'clock yesterday morning which was caused by a slight blaze in a straw bed in the shed of a building on Lincoln street. When the department arrived there were no signs of fire. The increase in the number of false alarms is becoming an annoyance. They are sometimes rung in when there is no possibility of the services of the department being needed.

PRESENTATION. A very pleasant event took place at the Abbott Square Grammar School building yesterday, the principal of the school, Mr. L. W. Taylor, being presented with an elegant solid gold watch chain in token of the respect and esteem of his pupils. Mr. Taylor closes his connection with the school with the end of this term. He has been principal for three years and during that time has proven himself an able teacher, winning the confidence of the committee, parents and scholars, all of whom will unite in wishing him prosperity in whatever pursuit he may choose to direct his efforts.

BANGOR HIGH SCHOOL.

Graduating Exercises at the Opera House—Reception at City Hall.

The Bangor Opera House was crowded to overflowing yesterday afternoon by the parents and many friends of the Senior class of the Bangor High School assemble to listen to the graduating exercises. The demand for tickets had been greater than School Agent Bradbury could supply, every seat being taken the day before the exhibition. The stage was, as is usual on such occasions, handsomely decorated. The class motto, "Animi Fortes, Manus Volentes," together with "'86," all constructed of of field daisies, were suspended over the rear of the stage. At either side were masses of flowers, while the diplomas were in a basket made of flowers which occupied a prominent position on a stand.

The exercises commenced at three o'clock the audience being in their seats sometime before. Rev. G. B. Ilsley and J. W. Donigan Esq., of the School Committee, Rev. A. W. Anthony of the Essex Street church and S. P. Bradbury Esq., School Agent first came upon the stage occupying seats upon the left. Mr. J. M. Hill, Principal and Misses Clark, Philbrook, Brown and Walsh the assistants with Prof. Carl Braun teacher of German, took seats upon the right. Andrews' Orchestra then played a beautiful march and the class, marshalled by Miss Eva M. Shaw filed upon the stage occupying seats in the center. The young ladies were all dressed in white and wore flowers while the young gentlemen wore black suits, the entire class presenting a fine appearance. The following was the Andrews furnished some of his most delightful music and the applause which followed every selection plainly showed the appreciation of the listeners. Our citizens would like the privilege of hearing the orchestra much oftener. Their first selection was the overture "Pique Dame" by Suppe. Rev. A. W. Anthony offered a most eloquently worded and impressive prayer. The Latin salutatory by Mr. Hunt was splendidly delivered. He addressed the audience, committee, teachers and finally the class. His pronunciation was very clear and the emphasis perfect, and the best versed Latin scholars in the audience pronounced the effort an exceedingly creditable one. Miss Bickford gave her recitation with much expression showing careful rehearsal and considerable elocutionary power.

The dialogue in French by Misses Harlow, Collins and Davis was as fluently rendered as it would have been had the young ladies been using their native language. The accent and pronunciation indicated that the speakers had been studious and intelligent French scholars. Miss Shaw's song was one of the most enjoyable numbers on the programme. To make one's debut as a singer in an Opera House crowded with critical people is no pleasant task, but the young lady sang beautifully. She has a very sweet voice and her song was warmly applauded.

Miss Chase in her well written and equally well delivered essay spoke of the former great scarcity of books and dwelled upon the difficulty of obtaining an education then as compared with the advantages of the present. Book learning, however, is not all that is required in this world. One must learn to use his own thoughts as well as those of others. The educated man must be a practical man. One must have a fixed purpose in view and above all a good character. Learning is important, practical knowledge is excellent, but character is indispensable. The essay was a most creditable production and obtained many words of praise. Andrews' second selection was a gavotte Heart's Desire by Schrappe, which was very artistically rendered. Miss Farrell gave her recitation with much spirit and the audience applauded vigorously.

The debate had been awaited with interest and was consequently listened to very attentively. Mr. Hubbard speaking upon the affirmative contended that the organization was detrimental to the individual laborer in theory, first, because it interfered with the law of demand and supply, second, because it was tyrannical, third, because it was antagonistic to the government and fourth because it made no distinction between good and poor labor. The speaker explained each of these points in detail and at some length and then devoted his attention to the practical side of the question. He referred to strikes, boycotts and lockouts, explaining how seriously they checked business and their effects upon the laborers themselves. Each idea advanced was illustrated and at the close the speaker was rewarded with applause. His address was well worded and it was evident that he was well posted on the subject.

Mr. McCann said that if the laborers had the right to demand a just recompense for their toil individually they certainly had the right to do so collectively. He wanted to see thoroughly organized labor and then capital would be forced to recognize it. He referred to the part the laboring man has taken in building the country and its institutions, the bravery with which they have fought its battles. He said that labor had the same right to unite as capital and the laboring man in this country could certainly not be called unreasonable. They hold the balance of power, they can control Congress and make themselves felt by capital and yet they do not exercise these privileges. The Knights of Labor are citizens of this country, have protected it and will protect it. All they ask in return is enough to make their homes the abode of plenty and happiness, to educate their children to love their country. They are temperate and reasonable and are willing at all times to arbitrate peacefully. Loud and continued applause greeted the speaker at the close. He handled his side of the question with an ability which showed him to be an unusually good debater and an earnest thinker.

The dialogue in German offered more evidence that in the modern languages our High School pupils are particularly proficient and surely Misses Pease, Pottle, and Spratt are not the least gifted especially in the matter of pronunciation. Miss Getchell's piano solo was a beautiful selection and rendered splendidly. Mr. Wingate in his declamation told the story of the nomination of Garfield, picturing in eloquent words the intense excitement at the Convention in Chicago and all over the country. He spoke of the two great candidates Grant and Blaine before that convention, the devotion of their followers and the grand enthusiasm following the nomination. The theme held the close attention of the audience and was interesting to the close.

Miss Mullaney presented the numerous reasons why the sympathy of America should be with Ireland in the present struggle of the latter for liberty. Every National achievment, every step in the progress of our country had been aided by Irishmen. The young lady enumerated the Irish leaders in the Revolution and in the war of 1812, speaking of their brilliant exploits and their unexcelled bravery. Her closing was very strong and the entire essay was of more than an ordinary degree of excellence.

Mr. McCullough's address to '87 was a splendid one and was worded in such a manner that no abstract would give an idea of its excellence. The class mentioned occupied seats together in the orchestra circle and the speaker addressed them directly. In the opening he spoke of the pleasant relations which had existed between the classes during the course. He endeavored to impress upon his hearers the importance of their education, speaking in a most interesting and intelligent manner upon this point. In behalf of the graduating class he extended their kindest wishes to the Juniors, hoping that their last year would be as pleasant as the one that '86 had just passed. Mr. Andrews's third selection was "Introduction and Tarantelle" by Rollinson.

Miss Daggett's class history was one of the best ever read at the High school exercises. It was most pleasantly written and in delivering it Miss Daggett emphasized a certain few of the many ridiculous events in the past history of '86, causing considerable laughter. It contained the following interesting statistics in regard to the class: There are 27 members, 9 gentlemen and 18 ladies. The oldest is 20, the youngest 16 and the average is just 18. The tallest is 5 feet 11 inches, the shortest 5 feet 2 inches and the average 5 feet 7 inches. The historian said that there were 4 brunettes, 2 blondes and the remainder were a happy medium. The largest boot worn was number eight, the smallest 2½, while the average was number 4. The heaviest member of the class weighed 150 pounds, the lightest 100, while the average, was 124. There were 20 Republicans, 6 Democrats and 1 Independent. The religious preferences as follows: Episcopalian, 1; Unitarian, 2; Methodist, 3; Baptist, 4; Universalist, 4; Catholic, 5; Congregationalist, 8. Of the nine young gentlemen seven will enter college, one will go to a commercial school and the other undecided.

Miss Johnson's prophecy abounded in happy hits, causing merriment both in the class and among the audience. It was splendidly written and each member of '86 was disposed of in a most ingenious manner. The valedictory by Miss Hutchings was a very scholarly production and delivered with a great deal of feeling. After addressing the audience she cordially thanked the teachers of the lower schools for early instruction, the school committee for the interest taken by them in the class throughout the course. To the High School teachers she expressed the obligations due them by her class and said that the good wishes of the members of '86 would ever be theirs. Her remarks to the class were exceedingly appropriate. She charged them not to lay aside what they had learned but to endeavor to add to it constantly and always remember the influence which they might exert if their knowledge was used in the right directions. The valedictory was deservedly applauded.

After the valedictory the class arose and Rev. Mr. Ilsley addressed them in behalf of the School Committee. He said that twenty-five years ago men in uniform and equipped for battle might be seen marching through our streets bound for the war. They were our quota of the troops to suppress the rebellion. The class of '86 now goes forth as our part of the mighty army to suppress ignorance in the land. He referred to the large percentage of the ignorant who were criminals and said that education alone was to make the American people free from vice, happy and united and render our institutions stable.

The citizens of Bangor present were highly gratified with the creditable manner in which the various parts had been presented and he could but unite with them in bidding the class God speed and wishing that their future days might be pleasant and crowned with success. In the absence of the chairman of the School Committee he took pleasure in presenting the diplomas, remembering that they were not only tokens of the diligence and patience of the scholars but of the faithfulness of the teachers. After splendid remarks, of which the above is but a brief abstract, Mr. Ilsley handed the diplomas to the class.

The following are the names of the ladies and gentlemen receiving diplomas and the courses from which they graduate:

College course—William Wingate Hubbard, Orman Brown Humphrey, Walter Reid Hunt, Daniel McCann, Edw. Francis McCullough, George Thoreau Thatcher, Harry Cargill Wingate.

Classical course—Mary Lurena Bickford, Agnes Holmes Chase, Honoria Anastasia Collins, Belle Whitney Daggett, Leslie A. Danforth, (partial course), Alice Maud Davis, May Elizabeth Farrell, Ella Louise Getchell, May Burr Hutchings, Harriet Merrill Johnson, Agnes Maureen Mullaney, Nellie Frances Pease, Myra Etta Pottle, Lucy Belle Spratt, Helen Louise White.

English Course—Ralph Fessenden Goodhue, Grace Wellington Harlow, Eva Mabel Shaw, Julia Stockwell Wallace, Esther Maria Fletcher.

After receiving the pieces of parchment for which they had earnestly toiled so long, the class advanced to the front of the stage and sang the following class ode, being accompanied on the piano by Mr. George E. Cushing:

CLASS ODE.

Words by Nellie L. White. Music by Orman B. Humphrey.

As classmates we are gathered here
To sing our parting song,
For now we break the mystic band
That's held our hearts so long,
For in the past we've shared our joys,
Together with our pain;
But now alone we tread the path
Across life's varied plain.

From hence we walk in separate lines,
With hopes of lasting joy,
New duties will our thoughts engage,
New tasks our hands employ.
And if we ever faithful be
And move in virtue's way,
We'll meet upon that happy shore
Where shines eternal day.

Now as we sing our last farewell
To friends and teachers dear,
The saddening heart gives forth a sigh,
The anxious eye a tear;
And as we mark our future course
O'er life's uncertain sea,
Oh! Spirit of dear "Eighty-six,"
Our guardian angel be.

The benediction was then pronounced by Rev. Mr. Ilsley and the large audience slowly dispersed. The exercises throughout were of the highest order of merit, not only doing credit to the class but to the teachers. There was no hesitation upon any of the parts, the smoothness being something particularly noticeable. The absence of bouquets and other floral tributes was most agreeable and the sensible action of the class in voting not to receive them is worthy of imitation by the graduates in years to come.

THE RECEPTION LAST EVENING.

The reception tendered the graduating class at City Hall last evening by the class of '87 was attended by a very large number of people. The Senior class motto was over the rear of the stage accompanied by the inscription "87 to '86." The former numerals were in lavender flowers and the latter in yellow the colors of the classes which they represented. A large pyramid of field daisies and numerous vases of flowers stood upon the stage while wreaths of elegant flowers were suspended from the iron supports of the gallery. Two large floral balls formed a center piece and many festoons of bunting added much to the general appearance of the hall and reflected credit upon the decorative committee Misses Hutchings, Glass, Bolton and Harlow and Messrs. Holden, Constantine, Hunt, and Smith.

The reception commenced at eight o'clock, the following members of the class acting as the Reception Committee: Misses Dunning, Milliken, Emery, Whitney, Moore, Bolton, Farrington, Clergue, Menges, Wasgatt, Alice Robinson and Mae Robinson and Messrs. Hunt and Colby. The young ladies were handsomely costumed. After the reception refreshments consisting of ice cream and cake were served by the class, the committee being Misses Adams, Glass, Milliken and Menges. A programme of ten dances was then carried out to the inspiring music of Andrews' Orchestra. Mr. Fred B. Cutler acted as floor director, with Messrs. Arthur Hamlin, H. W. Plummer and F. D. Lincoln as aids. The occasion was an interesting event in the school history and thoroughly enjoyed by all present.

A Strong Endorsement for Doris.

Mr. John B. Doris' great show will be seen here next Thursday and no doubt will draw a great crowd. It was in Lewiston Thursday and the Journal contained the following strong endorsement of the circus:

The opening performance was at two o'clock. Mr. Doris' show is excellent. One can enjoy it, if he can ever enjoy any circus. It is a compact, well furnished organization, with no inferior artists. Fifty acts are to be seen on the stage and in the ring. James Robinson, the rider, is a host in himself. He did some trick riding Thursday afternoon that is extraordinary. He claims to be the world's champion. He evidently has few rivals for the honor. The great show piece is the Turkish knife thrower. It is not a new trick in essence, but in detail it is something. One can hardly keep his eyes from it. Rifler Bey is the stage name of the man, and he carves the air all around a victim's head in a way to make your backbone shiver. The equestriennes Sallie Marks and Ella Stokes are high in the profession. The reptile queen lifts around three hundred pound snakes. It is very odd, but snake flesh is very weighty material. It is three or four times as heavy as ox flesh. The difficulty of these feats can hardly be understood. The leaping by J. F. Batchelder, the trapezists, acrobats, trained stallions and elephants made up a good show. There are two rings.

AS THEY CANNOT POSSIBLY

make a porous plaster having anything like the medicinal qualities of Benson's, the camp followers of the pharmaceutical profession produce tons of worthless plasters, and give them names which resemble in print that of the genuine, and, when carelessly spoken, sound like it. For example, Cheap John druggists will offer you trash variously styled "Capsicum," "Capsicin," "Capsicine" or "Capucin" plasters, prefaced sometimes with the name "Benton's" or Burton's." We earnestly caution the public against the whole tribe of them. They are absolutely useless as remedies for disease. To be sure they are cheap, but plain muslin is cheaper and just as efficacious. Ask for Benson's, watch the spelling, and look for the "Three Seals" trademark, and the word "Capcine," which is cut in the centre of the genuine. SMW

An Unromantic Romance.

(Concluded.)

"I am rude enough to admire your watch," exclaimed Miss Ada in her baby fashion. The rector feared she was just a little addicted to flirting, but it is a pardonable sin if not carried too far. He smiled.

"Yes," he responded. "A gift from my parishioners."

"That shows how they appreciate you," said Miss Ada with an upward glance through her long eyelashes. "A valuable gift, I am sure."

"It is. I believe it is worth from sixty to eighty guineas," said the rector, pardonable pride in his air and tone.

"May I look at it?"

"Certainly." He detached it from the chain and laid it on her little open palm.

"It is very pretty," said Miss Ada, admiringly yet critically. "It is so like one Uncle Charles has—Sir Charles Crampton. Do you know him?"

"I am sorry to say I do not," replied the rector. "We shall be at the station now in seven or eight minutes."

"What a pity—I mean I am so glad," said the young lady in a little confusion, the prettiest blush conceivable dyeing her cheeks for a moment as she handed the watch back to the reverend gentleman. "Now mind you don't lose that," she added, shaking her finger at him with the warning air of some mob-capped granny just stepped out from a nursery rhyme.

"Ah, I am very careful."

"Gentlemen always think that. They always fancy they are so clever, and so well prepared against all snares and dangers. Is that the station?" she suddenly asked, excitedly.

"Yes." The rector felt mildly regretful; the pleasant minutes had flown past like a flash.

Miss Ada clapped her hands gleefully. She seemed a very sprite, a Puck, an Ariel, a being not to be easily matched for grace, beauty, good humor, enchantingly frank ways—a charming creature; even if given to flirting. But all pretty girls flirt when a chance offers, and ugly or even-plain girls amuse themselves, too, with that pleasing pastime. The rector sighed. Should he ever again meet this guileless, amiable young woman? Maybe not. And if not, what matter?

The train rapidly swept into the station. Miss Ada eagerly, anxiously gazed at the platform, where another bustling, jostling crowd was scattered.

"I see papa! and Uncle Charles is with him—what a surprise!" she cried gayly. "I don't see my maid. O, Bellamy, Bellamy, how tiresome you are! But I am stupid myself; of course she mustn't get out till the train stops. Could I get out for a minute, and just run to see where she is? I am going to play a prank on papa. He loves a joke; he is full of fun. I will pretend not to be myself at all. It will be such fun." She quickly threw a thick brown gossamer veil over her bonnet, pulling it closely over her face, then she whisked a light gray wrap completely round her figure.

"I think it would be wisest to stay where you are. Your father is sure to see you if you show yourself. Besides, he will doubtless go to all the carriages, and—and your maid will signal to him," urged the rector.

"O but I must tease him," cried Miss Ada, who was evidently used to doing exactly as she pleased, and objected to being thwarted in any wayward caprice. "I won't risk dropping this—do take care of it for me—only just a minute, you know;" pushing the morocco case containing the diamond necklace into his reluctant hands. "There is papa—that tall man in an ulster. Don't let him see me; let me out, quick. It is only for fun. I will ask him to come in here if you don't mind."

The train stopped, and the lively young lady, without waiting for advice or assistance, whisked open the door, sprang to the platform, carefully keeping her face concealed, and darted away, light as a swallow, to hide for a moment, like some gay, frolicsome, thoughtless child, unused to control.

The tall gentleman whom she had indicated as her father, together with his companion, were obviously seeking for the lovely teasing girl. They looked about, scanning every one quietly but sharply, and then began walking along the line of carriages. The elderly respectable maid apparently retained her seat. She was nowhere to be seen; but the rector, watching the little incident with some amusement, was obliged to acknowledge to himself that he had scarcely glanced at her, and should decidedly not be able to recollect even the general aspect of her prosaic figure. There was an expression of anxiety on the face of the taller man, General Marine, as the rector presumed him to be, which was natural under the circumstances.

The two gentlemen paused at the door of the compartment in which the smiling rector remained seated. The leader scanned the clerical traveller attentively, and glanced swiftly over the seats, the floor, the racks, then again at the sole occupant of the carriage.

"Pardon me," he began courteously.

"Certainly. I think practical joking is a foolish amusement," responded the Rev. Septimus, with bland politeness, commingled with cordiality. "I may at once relieve your natural anxiety by informing you that your daughter has only this moment run away, out of girlish gayety, to play at hide-and-seek with you."

"I don't understand you," coldly answered the tall stranger. "Your looks are more respectable than your ways, sir. Allow me—;" and leaning in at the window, he attempted to lay his hand on the red morocco case lying conspicuously on the reverend gentleman's knee.

"Most decidedly not," exclaimed the rector, whipping the costly toy into one of the outer pockets of his travelling coat. A rapid surmise led him to guess that this highly distinguished looking stranger was either as fond of practical joking as his beautiful daughter, or else a daring railway thief. He feared the latter—yet how eminently sedate and sober his aspect, while his expression was open, albeit somewhat stern.

"Appearances are against you, my good sir," said the stranger, speaking in a subdued tone. "We have no time to lose. If you will not permit me to inspect that case, containing, I understand, a valuable diamond necklace, I shall be obliged to request you to accompany me and my friend here to the station-master's office."

"I shall do neither the one nor the other. Unless there is some grievous mistake, your conduct is positively impertinent. I decline to relinquish this case, whatever it contains, to any one but the person who has intrusted it to me. And I shall most decidedly not accompany you anywhere," said the rector, haughtily, assuming his most severe clerical air.

"We shall see. That necklace belongs to the Countess of Airly; you can see her initials and coronet on the outside, and—"

A sad, half-pitying thought darted through the rector's mind. The true fact of the matter was, evidently, that the beautiful girl was a young countess; she was flying from home, and this was not her father, but perchance a tyrannical husband. Her young life, her bright future, her tender heart, had all been sacrificed on the altar of ambition; what a pitiful story! Perchance she was guilty—she loved another. But before he could reply the other continued roughly—"And it has been stolen."

"Not by me," cried the Rev. Septimus, utterly shocked.

"That remains to be proved. Lord Airly has telegraphed that his wife's dressing-case was opened at the station this train has just quitted."

The Rev. Septimus turned visibly pale. "But—surely—"

"I regret that we should be under the necessity of insisting on your coming with us," urged the stranger.

"Are you not, then, General Marine?"

"I am not. My name is Doughty, and I am a member of the detective force. Here is my card, if you wish to see it."

"There must be, surely, some terrible mistake," stammered the reverend gentleman, looking about with a scared gaze for the vanished beauty, who had flown so mysteriously. He could not believe that she had totally disappeared, leaving him in so painfully embarrassing a situation. "I will explain—"

"It happens very awkwardly that the stolen property is found in your possession," said Detective Doughty, touched by his dismay. "I have no doubt you will be able to explain matters. Did you say a young person handed it you? Tall, showy-looking, dressed up to the nines, talkative, and plausible as the devil himself?"

"Something of that kind," answered the rector, searching hurriedly for his dressing-case in order to produce one of his cards.

"Time presses. The train leaves in ten minutes. You probably do not want to have a scene, or a scuffle," said the detective, gently but firmly.

The rector mechanically put his hand to his waistcoat pocket to take out his watch; with a little cry of alarm, he glanced down—his watch was gone, and the chain hung uselessly. He turned again cold with fear, to seek for his dressing-case; that, too, had gone. It had contained, among its various stores, some forty or fifty pounds in gold.

"Sally Lightfingers, as we call her—she says her name is Quickly, but she invents new names every time she wants an alias—Miss Sally was at the station, and is suspected of stealing the necklace," said Mr. Doughty, watching the movements of the unhappy traveler attentively and with some professional interest. "If a young woman such as I described has been with you, and gave you the necklace, it was Sally, in all likelihood, and she saw me plain enough, though I couldn't spot her anywhere, and she was afraid of falling into my clutches, especially as I want her about another similar affair."

Oh, horrible, most horrible! It was but too clear; the Rev. Septimus Haslingdean was now convinced that he had been most cruelly duped, played upon by a base, designing, artful wretch.

"It must be so," he meekly assented. "Is there—is there any chance of my being able to recover my things?"

"I can't say. We must dispose of this other little business first. I quite believe you have had nothing to do with the affair beyond what you say, but it is deucedly unlucky for you. Who are you, may I ask?"

The unfortunate victim mentioned his name and place of abode, gathered his remaining properties together, and rose, as a martyr might prepare to go to the stake. Mr. Doughty made a sign to one of the porters to assist, and a melancholy, almost funeral procession was formed.

He felt assured he could easily exculpate himself, and throw off the frightful imputation of being a common thief, but the sense of his own mortifying loss, the feeling that he had been duped like the simplest Moses Primrose, was too much to bear with calmness.

A gentleman was with the station-master—the Earl of Airly. He had come by the train which had conveyed the rector and his too bewitching fellow-passenger. In a few brief words, Mr. Doughty explained the state of affairs. The earl lifted his hat with kindly courtesy to the hero of the unlucky adventure, who drew forth the case containing the necklace.

"I have not the slightest doubt all is as you say," observed the station master gravely; "but I must not act on my own responsibility, sir. I have only your own word—you do not seem to have any credentials proving that you are really the Rev. Mr. Haslingdean, and we get so imposed upon."

"I have letters in my pocket directed to me," pleaded the Rev. Septimus.

"Well. That is something. But this is a serious matter. I should probably get myself into trouble if I let you go without being absolutely sure you are what you profess to be," remonstrated the station-master.

"See. I have only one more station to reach; if you require positive proof, will you let one of these gentlemen come with me? My trap will be in waiting—I have only about half a mile to drive; if he can come with me to my house," said the rector.

"Yes. I think that would do. I feel sure it is all as you say, but you know, sir—" apologized the station master.

"I should prefer to have the matter properly cleared up," observed Mr. Doughty. "If it is Madam Sally who has played you this trick, I give you next to no hope of hearing of the watch or anything else; she is one of the most artful minxes ever heard of. We will do our best, but—" He shrugged his shoulders. "Mr. Stanmore, here will go with you, and he can take down all necessary particulars."

"I regret exceedingly this unfortunate affair, my dear sir," remarked Lord Airly, "although I am thankful to regain possession of my wife's necklace, not only for its own value, but because it was a gift from her father, who is dead. Good day, Mr. Haslingdean. I, for one, do not doubt for a moment all has happened as you say. I trust you may be able to trace the real culprit and recover your own property."

"Thank you," said the rector, in a more or less hollow voice. Then he went out again, the station master walking beside him, the two detectives following at a short distance, the porter carrying the rector's wraps and other belongings bringing up the rear.

But as they passed down the platform, a big, burly individual, recognized by the station master as one of the chief directors, met the group. He chanced by good fortune to be an intimate friend of the rector's; he had been an old college chum.

"Halloo, my dear Haslingdean," he cried, seizing him by the hand. "Well met. I am delighted to see you. Where are you coming from? Been indulging in one of your rare holidays, eh? You don't often afford yourself that indulgence."

"I have been staying with some friends for a short time, and am now returning home," said the Rev. Septimus. "I have just met with an unpleasant adventure, however, and I hail you as a kind of deliverer." In a few hasty words he explained the dilemma in which he found himself. His friend, while sympathizing with his griefs, could not help bursting into a hearty fit of laughter.

"You are not the first fellow who has been made a fool of by a pretty woman, and I suppose you won't be the last; but 'tis a deuce of a bother for you, especially about the watch," said his friend, still laughing. "It's all right," he added to the station master, who touched his cap lightly, and retired. "I am going to London; I will go with you as far as your station, if you like."

The rector gave the necessary instructions to Mr. Stanmore, and re-entered the train with his friend. He finished his journey in safety, perhaps not a wiser but indubitably a sadder man than when he had started. Gladly would he have locked the fact of his losses within the safe keeping of his own breast, but it was hopeless to conceal it from his housekeeper and servants. Day by day he waited for a gleam of hope, but in vain: his treasured watch and his dressing-case had gone from his gaze like the last traces of some beautiful dream.

Perhaps when his adoring parishioners discover his sad loss, they will present him with another watch, or some similar token of admiration and affection.—E. C. Needham, in Tinsley's Magazine.

SKIN TORTURES

—AND—

BLOOD HUMORS

Humiliating Eruptions, Itching and burning Skin Tortures, Loathsome Sores, and every species of Itching, Scaly, Pimply, Inherited, Scrofulous and Contagious Diseases of the Blood, Skin and Scalp, with Loss of Hair, from infancy to old age, are positively cured by Cuticura, the great Skin Cure, and Cuticura Soap, an exquisite Skin Beautifier, externally, and Cuticura Resolvent, the new Blood Purifier, internally.

COVERED WITH SORES.

I have been afflicted since last March with a Skin disease the doctors called Eczema. My face was covered with scabs and sores, and the itching and burning were almost unbearable. Seeing your Cuticura Remedies so highly recommended, concluded to give them a trial, using the Cuticura and Cuticura Soap externally, and Resolvent internally, for four months. I call myself cured, in gratitude for which I make this public statement.

MRS. CLARA A. FREDERICK.

Broad Brook, Conn.

SCALP, FACE, EARS AND NECK.

I was afflicted with Eczema on the Scalp, Face, Ears and Neck, which the druggist, where I got your remedies, pronounced one of the worst cases that had come under his notice. He advised me to try your Cuticura Remedies, and after five days' use my scalp and part of my face were entirely cured, and I hope in another week to have my ears, neck, and the other part of my face cured.

HERMAN SLADE.

120 E. 4th Street, New York.

ITCHING DISEASES CURED.

Cuticura stands at the head of its class, especially is this the case with the Cuticura Soap. Have had an unusually good sale this summer, owing to the prevalence of an aggravated form of Itch through some localities in the country in which the Cuticura Remedies proved satisfactory.

W. L. HARDIGG, Druggist.

Uniontown, Ky.

CURE IN EVERY CASE.

Your Cuticura Remedies outsell all other medicines I keep for skin diseases. My customers and patients say they have effected a cure in every instance, where other remedies have failed.

Constitutional Catarrh.

No single disease has entailed more suffering or hastened the breaking up of the constitution than Catarrh. The sense of smell, of taste, of sight, of hearing, the human voice, the mind—one or more, and sometimes all, yield to its destructive influence. The poison it distributes throughout the system attacks every vital force, and breaks up the most robust of constitutions. Ignored, because but little understood, by most physicians, impotently assailed by quacks and charlatans, those suffering from it have little hope to be relieved of it this side of the grave. It is time, then, that the popular treatment of this terrible disease by remedies within the reach of all, passed into hands at once competent and trustworthy. The new and hitherto untried method adopted by Dr. Sanford in the preparation of his Radical Cure has won the hearty approval of thousands. It is instantaneous in affording relief in all head colds, sneezing, snuffling and obstructed breathing, and rapidly removes the most oppressive symptoms, clearing the head, sweetening the breath, restoring the senses of smell, taste and hearing, and neutralizing the constitutional tendency of the disease towards the lungs, liver and kidneys.

Sanford's Radical Cure consists of one bottle of the Radical Cure, one box of Catarrhal Solvent, and an Improved Inhaler; price, $1.

Potter Drug & Chemical Co., Boston.

KIDNEY PAINS

And that weary, lifeless, all-gone sensation ever present with those of inflamed kidneys, weak back and loins, aching hips and sides, overworked or worn out by disease, debility or dissipation, are relieved in one minute and speedily cured by the CUTICURA ANTI-PAIN PLASTER, a new, original, elegant, and infallible antidote to pain and inflammation. At all druggists, 25c.; five for $1; or of POTTER DRUG CO., Boston.

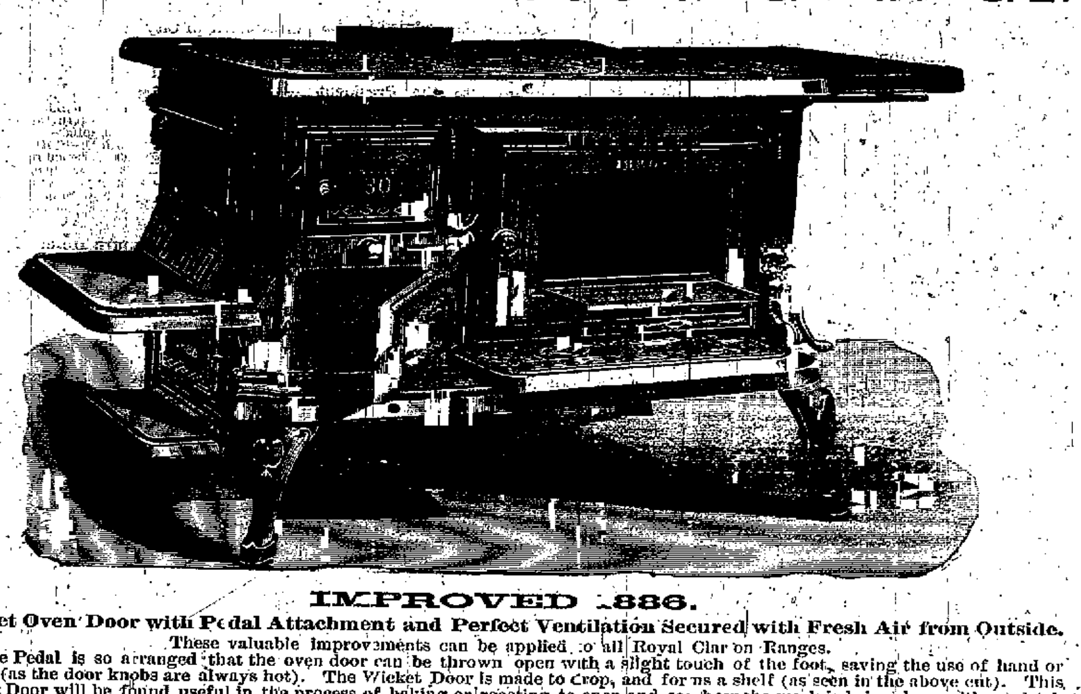
ROYAL CLARION COOKING RANGE.



IMPROVED 1886.

Wicket Oven Door with Pedal Attachment and Perfect Ventilation Secured with Fresh Air from Outside.

These valuable Improvements can be applied to all Royal Clarion Ranges.

The Pedal is so arranged that the oven door can be thrown open with a slight touch of the foot, saving the use of hand or holder (as the door knobs are always hot). The Wicket Door is made to drop, and for as a shelf (as seen in the above cut). This Wicket Door will be found useful in the process of baking or roasting to open and see how the work is being done without detriment to the article being cooked, and in roasting, basting can be done without cooling the oven to any perceptible degree. The ventilation at the top of the oven door, in connection with the oven ventilator at the top of side of oven, as applied to our Royal Clarion, makes a completely ventilated oven, and for practical use the most perfect baking oven known to man. This production of 1886, with our many improvements, make the Royal Clarion Ranges the most desirable ever put upon the market.

It expels all kinds of worms, and in fact all living creatures that infest the bowels of suffering humanity are triumphantly expelled by this truly wonderful remedy. Testimony in its favor comes in from all sections where it is known. It not only effect[ually] removes from the system these troublesome and disagreeable worms, but children who have been weak and puny for years, are at once improved and restored to health by its use. Being a mild and gentle laxative, it is a corrective of the greatest value. It is purely vegetable and cannot be beat. It has also expelled several lizards. One eight inches in length, is spotted, belongs to the water species and looks like a veritable young alligator. Fits caused by worms and indigestion.

BURDOCK BLOOD BITTERS!

Dyspepsia.

GENTS:—I feel it my duty to say respecting Burdock Blood Bitters, that it is the best medicine I ever took. I suffered two or three years from stomach troubles and dyspepsia, as well as from liver and kidney complaint. I was not able to attend to my business. My wife was afflicted in much the same way. We read of your Bitters in the papers and made up our minds that we would try them. The result is, my wife and I began to improve at once, and I am now able to do more hard work than before in ten years. It relieved my kidney troubles as well. We both wish you, the makers of it, Godspeed.

JOSEPH LANDON,
Chelsea, Vt.

To the Honorable Judge of Probate for the County of Penobscot.

The undersigned, Guardian of Mary S. Bolton and Frank L. Bolton, minor heirs of Alfred A. Bolton, late of Brewer, in said County, deceased, respectfully represents that said minors are seized and possessed of the following described Real Estate, viz:

One fourth undivided of pew number thirty five in the Congregational Meeting House at Brewer Village in said town of Brewer:

Also a fourth part of an undivided half of what was the homestead of their grandfather, the late Alfred Bolton, and their uncle, Alexander Y. Bolton their grandfather and uncle aforesaid owning half each undivided, and said minors inheriting from their grandfather a fourth of his half, subject to a mortgage on the half, Alfred Bolton to Nancy M. Bolton, in which the premises are described, recorded in the Registry of Deeds for Penobscot County, Volume 530, page 105, and subject to said Alfred Bolton's widow's right of dower in the half.

That it would be for the benefit of said minors that said Real Estate should be sold, and the proceeds thereof put out at interest, or otherwise used for their benefit.

She therefore prays that license may be granted her to sell and convey the above described Real Estate at public or private sale, according to the requirement of law.

Girl Wanted.

A good, capable girl at june18 33 STATE STREET.

Sign of a Good Husband.

IN SUMMER

He keeps Birch edgings on hand for his wife to saw when she is out of stove-wood, but the Model Husband buys them sawed for the stove and cut in bundles, and also keeps a good supply of my free-burning stove coal for Summer use.
